Bernard Gallin Endowed Lecture: Madrasas and Militancy in Indonesia: Three Stories

Speaker: Robert W. Hefner, Director, Institute on Culture,

Religion, and World Affairs, and Professor, Department of Anthropology, Boston University

Following the collapse of the authoritarian Soeharto regime in May 1998, Indonesia seemed swept by a wave of radical, school-based, Islamist mobilization. In several locales, larger militias threatened attacks on democracy activists, Christian evangelicals, and liberal or non-conformist Muslims. However, a trouble-making fringe aside, most Muslim schools are forward-looking centers of social and educational innovation. At the same time, however, a small but well organized fringe in the Islamic school system continues to use its social resources to exercise an anti-democratic influence disproportionate to its numbers. The future of Islamic education and, to a significant degree, Muslim politics in Indonesia and elsewhere will depend on the outcome of this struggle between democratic-minded Muslims and their less numerous but well-organized anti-democratic rivals.

Announcements

Global View symposium, "Promoting Global Learning in Undergraduate Education"

The Center for Higher and Adult Education at Michigan State University is pleased to announce the Global View symposium, "Promoting Global Learning in Undergraduate Education".

The intention of the symposium is to frame and examine diverse perspectives on global learning in undergraduate education. Recognizing the importance of preparing students for a complex, interrelated world, the presentations and discussions will acknowledge the diversity of perspectives concerning intercultural competencies and international, global, and multicultural learning. The symposium will complement and contribute to the ongoing work at MSU dedicated to enhancing global competency as well as such efforts at many other higher education institutions. The symposium will be of interest to a wide audience: institutional leaders including provosts, deans, and department chairs; faculty members; faculty developers; and graduate students studying issues in higher education or planning for faculty careers in a range of fields.

Global View: Promoting Global Learning in Undergraduate Education

Date: November 3, 2010, 9:30am - 4pm

Location: The Henry Center for Executive Development, Michigan State University

Cost is $35 for administrative leaders and faculty members ($20 for graduate students) and includes parking, attendance at all events, meals and closing reception. Please review the details and consider attending and bringing this event to the attention of colleagues. Visit <http://gihe.msu.edu/globalview/index.html> for more information and to register online.

We hope you will join our conversation on global learning in undergraduate education. We would also appreciate your encouraging colleagues to attend the symposium. It should be a thought-provoking and productive event.

2010 Global Festival - Travel the World in One Day a place to taste a variety of ethnic cuisine. Proceeds support the Center for Visiting International Professionals (CVIP) Scholarship Fund for spouses of MSU international students to attend MSU classes. Visit: <http://cvip.isp.msu.edu/globalfestival/> for more details.

The MSU Global Festival will be held on Sunday, November 21, 2010 at the MSU Union from 12:00 noon until 5:00 p.m.. The Global Festival offers the greater Lansing community the chance to explore cultures from around the world. Every year, international student organizations and area nationality groups share their culture through exhibits, dance and musical performances, and native games and crafts. The festival includes the "World Gift Shop," a marketplace to purchase international gift items and the Global Café,

New Course Spring 2011

ACR 848 (formerly RD 823)

Community-Based Natural Resource Management in Developing Countries

Tuesdays, 3:00-5:50 PM

Instructor: John Kerr

This course analyzes rural natural resource management in developing countries, focusing on the factors that lead to natural resource outcomes, e.g. conservation, productivity, and income distribution. The course begins with a look at how human and natural systems interact, then addresses a variety of issues that influence natural resource management including people's perceptions of the natural resource scarcity, poverty and population density, tenure security, property rights regimes, collective action and its determinants, and governance. It also examines policy tools for promoting conservation where benefits are off-site.
